SCOUT LEADERS AT TRAINING SESSION HELD IN ELKS' HOME

Importance of Devoted Guidance is Emphasized by Commodore Thos. B. Stockham

LEADERSHIP COURSES

District Commissioner Raymond O. Gilbert Also Among Speakers

Devoted guidance of youth was emphasized by Commodore Thomas B. Stockham while giving an address to Scouting leaders, gathered yesterday at the Elks' Home here. The men were attending the Elements of Cub, Scout, and Seascout Leadership courses, Part 2, sponsored by the Training Committee of the Bucks County Scouting Council, chairman Walter W. Pitzonka.

"Make it the habit of doing things the right way and in the right manner," urged the Commodore. "Scouting guides youth to think right. Most experiences in life are costly but Scouting accomplishes this in an inexpensive way. Envy, hatred nor malice will never make a strong citizenry. Citizenship must be founded on consideration of one's fellow man. The formation of right habits will give a foundation on which to build. Habits are not formed overnight—they are formed through retraining. Create habit mind sets that will make the good overcome the evil. Scouting will accomplish this in a practical appealing program to the Cub, Scout and Seascout."

District Commissioner Raymond O. Gilbert, supervising principal of the Northampton schools spoke on the subject of "Scouting's opportunity to produce men of character trained for citizenship." It was his opinion that men having certain traits in their personality would be most acceptable to the Scouting plan of citizenship training. Traits desirable in the leader to inspire the boy or young man include: good will to fellow-men, moral attitude of a good code of ethics, exercising his franchise of a right to vote, physical fitness, considering the rights of others abide by the majority decision, and faithfulness to an accepted job. He recommended that everyone "develop a life of happiness rather than of wealth, power or position."

The kindness of the Elks in providing a training center for the lower area leaders was greatly appreciated. It was necessary to have three different places to accommodate the training sessions. Directors of the sessions working with Scout Executive Wm. F. Livermore were for Cubbing, Cubmaster Joseph Kish (Andalusia); Boy Scouting, Neighborhood Commissioner, William F. Amick (Cornwells), and Seascouting, Field Commissioner of Senior Scouting A. B. Stiles (Croydon).

Subjects in the Cubbing course included "Association in joyful doing with and for others," "Cubbing helps Boy Scouting but does not trespass," "The Cubmaster's relationship to the Cub Pack," "Back-yard camping," and "Deniers and Den Chiefs." The instructors were Field Commissioner of Cubbing Horace P. Townsend (Langhorne), Skipper Raymond Vickers and Cubmaster Joseph Kish (Andalusia), and Scout Executive Wm. F. Livermore.

The Scout Leaders' lectures were related to the first class requirements. They were "Promoting troop spirit," "First class advancement helps," "The Good Turn in relationship to citizenship," "First Aid," "Signaling," "The Camporee, the O.U.T. in Scouting," and "Mapping." Lecturers were Neighborhood Commissioners David Neill (Bristol), William F. Amick (Cornwells), and Ronald Swain (Edgely), and Scoutmasters Robert Hershey (Langhorne), Herbert A. Pettit, Jr., and Wesley Hart (Bristol).

Topics for Seascouters were "Making Seascout advancement appealing to young men," "Influencing character," "Crew leader's duties," "The Skipper's relationship to his ship," "Planning cruises—the billet system," and "Using play-ways." Discussion leaders were Field Commissioner A. B. Stiles, and Jack Burgess (Morrisville); and Skippers Fred R. Herman (Bristol), Raymond Vickers, and Charles Markley.

BANKS IN TREE

SAUGUS, Mass. — (INS) — He was glad when the bank in which he had been saving his money collapsed. But the bank in which Thomas B. McCarrier had deposited spare change on occasion was an aged apple tree in the yard of his home. McCarrier had been placing money in the tree through a hole in the trunk, ten feet above the ground, for years. Collapse of the tree revealed a coin hoard which totaled $175.

Mrs. Elmer Sottung on Wednesday visited her sister, who is very ill in Philadelphia.

delphia, spent Thursday visiting at the Krieger Country Club.

ANNOUNCE COURSES FOR POLICE SCHOOL

Two Meetings Will Be Held
Each Week During The Training Period

35 ATTEND THE MEETING

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 8.—At a meeting of the Bucks County Police and Constables' Association, held here,
Chief of Police Welsh presented a synopsis of subjects to be taught at a training school which will get under way April 1. The school will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 with members of the Pennsylvania State Police and State Highway Patrol serving as instructors.

A Quakertown physician will present a course in first aid. Details of the curriculum will be announced later.

At the next meeting to be held on the first Thursday in April each member will bring along two citizens of his community who will be eligible as confidential members of the association.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served.

Among those present were County
Detective Anthony Russo, Sergeant
William R. Engle, of the State Highway Patrol, and Trooper Felix Gowan,
of the State Police.

With about 35 members present,
Justice of the Peace W. Carlisle Hobsack spoke to the association in the Devon Restaurant banquet room.

Justice Hobbsack, who was presented by Chief of Police James P.
Welsh, the presiding officer, stressed the importance of the benefits of organization and co-operation between the police and constables and magistrates of the county.

"It is not uncommon to hear unwarranted criticism of the police officers and magistrates of the county.
An individual cannot cope with unjust criticism, but an organization can do much to create in the public mind the proper attitude," said Mr. Hobbsack.

Justice Hobbsack said he did not think it wise for the magistrates and the police and constables of the county to merge into one organization, but emphasized rather the importance of working harmoniously for the common good.

He suggested that perhaps it would be wise for each group, the magistrates' and the police constables' association, to appoint a committee which would keep in contact with one another.

He also advocated holding open meetings in which the members have an opportunity to discuss and settle their own problems, but reiterated that it must all be done without personalities being injected and that every one must keep in a good frame of mind.

LASTING HONOR GAINED FOR WINNER OF BIG EVENT FOR LITTLE FOLKS

Today and the rest of the week will be milestones in the path of those who want to take part in choosing the community's favorite baby from among those already in the field. Perhaps your favorite hasn't been entered yet.
Obtain the votes anyway, then post them to the credit of your favorite in the list. Every business concern cooperating with The Bristol Courier in the election has votes for you. These are taking an interest in the election second only to those anxious to see their respective favorite returned the winner a few weeks hence, and they are being besieged with requests for vote coupons.

The coupons will be tabulated every Monday, of all coupons deposited until 10 p. m. the Saturday before. Be sure and place some votes in the ballot box before next tabulation time so your favorite will make a good showing in the next list. Another week is now under way in the greatest election this community has ever known—the election of the community's favorite baby—and the list of little candidates is growing even like the babies themselves grow in beauty and charm.

Aside from the honor of being declared by election, THE COMMU-NITY'S FAVORITE BABY, the winner will receive a handsome loving cup on which the name will be inscribed along with other pertinent data. The chief cash award of $500 goes to the winner also. That cup will be the permanent possession of the winner for life. It will outlast even the cash award made possible by The Courier and co-operating merchants.

There isn't a parent, aunt, uncle, cousin or unrelated friend who would not make the effort to see his or her favorite in that lasting honor. Your time will be happily spent by deposit-ing some votes to your favorite's credit today and launching him or her on the high-road to success and lasting fame. Enjoy an active part in selecting the community's favorite baby—remember, it's the little folks' election and all honor is due them. Each cou-

Here we find Billy, the manly little son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Smyrl, of 200 Mill street, Bristol, in a spectator's pose but he is far from being just a spectator in the now famous Baby Election. He is in the midst of his heated campaign and the votes are rallying to enlist under the "Vote for Smyrl" banner in ever-increasing numbers. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smyrl, of Edgely, and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Budney, of Eddington, are Billy's grandparents. Mr. Alpheus Peterson, of Edgely, is his great-grandfather.
This little fellow loves to dance when he hears music and is very friendly to everyone he meets. His campaign slogan is "Vote early and often" and you can wager he is doing his share to fill the ballot box each day.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS PLACE SECOND IN FOUL-SHOOTING CONTEST IN PHILA.

Margaret Phipps, Bristol high school, won second place in the fifth annual interscholastic foul-throwing tournament held in Philadelphia on Saturday when 41 schools from Pennsylvania and New Jersey, including 125 individuals, met to decide the championships of the east.

The tourney, the biggest event of its kind held in this section of the country, was largely attended and some thrilling efforts were on display. The basses showed that they could handle a basketball with the best of the male sex when marks, which would be the pride of the male court players, were made.

Mildred Thomas, of Lower Merion
High School, Ardmore, Penna., broke the tournament record in making 23 goals in 25 attempts. Her record-breaking performance erased the record of 22 made in 1933 by Mildred

Hinkle, of Quakertown, Pa., High School.

Margaret Phipps, of Bristol, Pa., High School, won second place with 22 successful attempts. Betty Kiehl, of Haverford, Pa., High School, finished third with 21 goals. Nine girls tied for the remaining seven individual prizes, and these girls staged an elimination to decide the winners. They were won by Margaret Stevens, of Villa Maria Academy; Ruth Jeffries, of Bristol, Pa., High School; Alberta Sturzebecker,
of Lansdale, Pa., High School;
Frances Dare, of Hammon, N. J.,
High School; Lucy Bolestra, of Ches-

Probe Vosper's Disappearance

London, Mar. 8.—Officials of the French Surete Generale today took up threads of an investigation into the strange disappearance at sea of Frank Vosper, 36-year-old playwright and actor.

Facts in the case, as revealed in a weird re-enactment of the tragedy by the only witnesses, beautiful Muriel Oxford, 22, and Peter Willes, 25, Vos-per's intimate friend, were carried to Havre today by William Pengelly, former attorney for Vosper.

Pengelly's law offices in London were rearranged to represent the luxurious stateroom aboard the French liner Paris, from which Vosper "felt he was an intruder," stepped out of a gay champagne party and right into the black Atlantic. Willes, transpired in the sorrowful re-enactment, was the one who cried out jestingly: "If you don't marry me I'll jump overboard," leading to believe that jealousy drove Vosper to his death.

Madrid May Soon Surrender

London, Mar. 8.—Madrid, verging on starvation and hunger, may soon force the surrender of the Spanish capital, which rebel armies have been unable to win by strength of arms. This dire news for the Spanish loyalists was brought to London today by competent observers who had just left Madrid.

3500 Workers Strike

Flint, Mich., Mar. 8.—Thirty-five hundred workers, the entire force of the Chevrolet motor plant, here, went on strike today and marched from the plant after a dispute with the local General Motors management. The walk-out forced the plant to close.
Spokesmen for the automobile workers said GM officials had refused to discharge a man after the workers demanded it.

Five Injured On Liner

Rome, Mar. 8.—Five Americans were injured, during the two-day pounding the Italian luxury liner Rex received in a violent tempest on her latest trip from New York, it was reliably reported today.

Three of the Americans were said to be in a serious condition, with one so badly injured she may bring to five, the total lost, as the 51,000 ton ship tossed about on 60 foot waves. At least sixty more passengers, slapped about in their cabins, thrown to the decks, or hammered around in companionways,
were suffering from severe bruises,
cuts, sprains and in some cases bone dislocations.

A veritable censorship, however,
made it difficult to secure information regarding the trip, said to have been one of the hardest Atlantic crossings in recent shipping annals. Names of the dead, understood to be three passengers, and a cabin boy, were not available. Italian line officials and police at Naples, the first port touched by the Rex in Italy, would say nothing.

MORE ADVERTISEMENTS

It is not a mere coincidence that newspaper advertising volume continues to grow and that business continues to expand. There is business to be had in an ever-swelling volume and the wise business man knows that the way to get it is through newspaper advertising.

Newspaper advertising pays today as never before because the consumer knows that steadily rising prices of consumer commodities makes keen buying imperative if the budget is not to be stretched too far, and reads the advertisements.

Newspaper advertising has played a great part in creating modern civilization. It has brought about large-scale production and lower prices, thus benefiting both producer and consumer. It will play an ever larger role in the post-depression days. There is a pent-up market for goods today that can be turned into mass sales by the newspaper advertiser, and the people are reading the ads as never before to determine where they can spend their money to the best advantage.

HERO SONNTAG

It is written: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

A few days ago a hero died who once offered to lay down his life in the chance that he might help to save the lives of millions in danger of death from yellow fever. His name was Charles G. Sonntag, a native of South Carolina and a private in the Army who among others volunteered to be bitten by mosquitoes to make test of the theory that these insects were the carriers of yellow fever. The experiment was conducted soon after the Cuban War.

In the Spanish-American War, only 266 soldiers were killed in battle, but 3,500 died of diseases, chief of which was yellow fever. After the war an Army commission undertook seriously to find the cause of the disease. Mosquitoes were suspected.

Several brave men offered to permit mosquitoes to bite them that the theory might be tested. The experiment was fatal to some; others survived. Sonntag, dying at the age of 64 in his South Carolina home, will rest in a hero's grave in Arlington National Cemetery.

COLOR IN LIFE

A gentleman with the intriguing name of Twyeffort has told a gathering of tailors in Philadelphia that no man who does not spend at least $4,000 a year on his wardrobe can call himself well dressed.

To demonstrate what he termed a few of the "necessities" in a man's wardrobe to meet the demand for color in dress, Mr. Twyeffort pointed to an exhibit including a green tuxedo coat and hat to match, an opera cape with scarlet lining and a strawberry outing coat with red and black striped trousers.

We would dearly love to see a man walking down Mill Street clad in a strawberry outing coat and red and black striped trousers. We'd be sure to turn around as he passed to read the placard on his back for we would be confident that he was a sandwich man in disguise.

A peacekeeper in Spain needn't necessarily speak Spanish, as all indications are it would be in the way.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Sept. 2, 1875. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Twelve fire companies are expected to be present with full equipments at the firemen's parade on Saturday, the 18th instant. McClurg's celebrated Liberty Cornet Band of Philadelphia will furnish music for the Bristol Fire Companies. Several other bands will accompany the guests of the Bristol Fire Companies. A large tent will also be erected with sufficient capacity to hold all the firemen, in which tables covered with refreshments will be placed for their benefit after the parade. The different companies will form on Radcliffe street, at one o'clock p. m., and move at two p. m. . . .

A larger quantity of peaches have been sold in this market this year than ever before. The three principal firms that have been in the business this season report sales aggregating 6,000 baskets, distributed as follows: Tilton & Co., 3,000 baskets, Henry Chew, 1,800 baskets, and Jones & Booz, 1,200 baskets. In addition to this a large number of baskets have been sold by store-keepers, hucksters, etc. The prices have varied during the season from 15 cents to $1 per basket.

Two Philadelphia gamins entered the cigar store of John Wilkinson on Mill street, Tuesday afternoon, and abstracted some small change from the till. After they left the store the loss was discovered. They were subsequently arrested, but they so strenuously asserted their innocence that they were suffered to depart. When on the steamboat Warner, after the boat left the wharf one of them showed up the missing scrip and shook it defiantly at the officer.

A company of gentlemen from Philadelphia are about starting up the old Keystone forge. They propose making blue iron.

DOYLESTOWN—The Linton Female Seminary commences its Fall term on Monday, September 6th, and the English and classical opens on the 7th of September. The manner in which these schools are conducted have won for them the universal approbation of the community.

A horse race is reported to take place on Monday next between Thomas B. Scott's brown horse and one owned by A. Fritz Weisel, for a purse of $400. Both are horses of good stock, each with a record below three minutes, which will make the race a lively one.

LANGHORNE—Bellevue Institute and Friends' Institute will re-open the first of next week. As heretofore it will be the aim of the teachers to give thorough instruction in all the branches.

The public school has opened with Hannah Manger and Sarah P. Flowers as teachers.

Rail shooting commenced yesterday.

but there was little powder expended on them. Two rail birds were all that were reported as being shot on our marshes, and the gunners are puzzled to know what has become of the birds. With the present mild weather we may expect a flight of them soon, and they will then be in good condition for shooting as the reeds upon which they feed will be ripe in a week or so. Last year, we recorded at the commencement of the season 145 birds shot; this year, two birds. The Burlington and Kinkora marshes are said to be destitute of birds.

WARMINSTER—The large and commodious Temperance Hotel, which is now under course of erection at Ivyland, is to be one of the largest in the country. It will be built 40 by 60 feet square, four stories high with mansard slats roof, surrounded with piazzas on first and second floors. The masonry starts down at solid rock, and is to run 36 feet above the bottom of the cellar, and 24 inches thick at the base. . . . The building connected with the hotel is to be built of brick. The dimensions we have not as yet ascertained. It is the intention of the hotel company to lease the premises to some suitable person as soon as completed.

Charles H. Wevill has sold his drug store to John R. Hamilton of Adams County.

SPELLERS TOP BEAUTY

LONG BEACH, Cal.—(INS)—Take it

from your future bosses, gals, if you wish to work as a stenographer you've got to be able to spell! At least that's what was disclosed in a survey by Dr. W. J. Klopp, supervisor of high schools here, who polled 500 employers in the city. The general consensus was that the potential secretaries didn't have to be beautiful, but should be blessed with charm, neatness, a good memory and—above all—know how to spell.

"Leisure to Repent"

by Ursula Parrott

SYNOPSIS

Gilbert Windon had been in love with lovely Denise Rendale from the moment he met her but she had eyes for no one except Keith Sheldie, handsome young playboy. However, Keith and Denise break up when the irresponsible Keith does not offer to marry Denise upon learning of her father's financial ruin. Keith frankly explained that he was solely dependent upon his wealthy father, and to marry meant being disinherited. Despite the fact that she is bored and unhappy, Denise's sister, Felicia, suggests that Denise marry "money" immediately as she herself had done. The latter loved the late Duane Fenton but married the unexciting, though reliable Eustace Gardiner Dayne when Duane failed her. Denise accepts Gilbert on condition that the marriage be a formal one and, if at the end of a year she is not happy, he will free her. Keith does not believe she will go through with it. He resented his father's stern dominance of his life which prevented him from doing as he pleased. Keith's mother had run away with her music teacher when Keith was only a year old and had died shortly after. Since then, his father took his hurt out on the boy, bending him to his will. At first Keith endured his father's treatment for loyalty's sake but later because of the money he would inherit. Denise and Gilbert are to be married the week before Thanksgiving. The days passed quickly. Denise thought, but yet were empty. Five days before her wedding-day she receives a note from Keith asking her to meet him. She does, and now when it is too late, he proposes. Much as she loves him, Denise rejects Keith, and as he leaves her she says, "Nothing is forever nowadays. I'll wait for you." As Denise dressed for her wedding, those words kept repeating themselves in her mind.

CHAPTER XI

Felicia looked at her diamond wrist-watch. "Plenty of time, still. I told Father to come back at five, of to take you downstairs. Do you mind having such a little wedding? Mine was so huge."

"I shouldn't like a big one," "Well—"

"You're more nervous than I am, Felicia."

"I noticed."

"Your dress is lovely." It was apple-green velvet, and did suit Felicia's clear pallor and brilliant hair superbly.

"No one will notice anyone but you."

Denise didn't answer. "Nothing nowadays is forever," and "Nothing nowadays is forever," was beating through her temples as if her heart itself was beating to that one refrain.

Felicia said suddenly: "Darling, I do want you to be happy," as if she were pleading.

"I'll be all right, I expect."

"Gilbert is truly a first-rate person, if I know anything about men; and I do know rather a lot."

"Sounds like a recommendation for a butler—first-rate person."

"Denise, don't be hard, don't be mocking, don't be like me." Her sister's voice was serious as Denise had never heard it. "Make up your mind to make a tremendous success of this marriage. Oh, I know, I mean to say nothing to be carefully unintrusive; but it's too important. Remember how most American novels end with the wedding-day, and most Continental ones begin with it? Well, have the Continental attitude, that the only interesting and significant part of your life begins today, that the rest was just a minor rehearsal."

As if she were speaking from a long way off, Denise heard her words. She was to remember them. But now, louder, more insistent, were the words: "Nothing nowadays is forever—nothing nowadays is forever."

The orchestra began to play. The sound came up the stairway very softly. Felicia said: "There we are. And here's Father, and your bouquet. I'll arrange your train at the top of the stairs."

Denise stood up, took her father's arm, took her bouquet. At the stair-head, Felicia preceded her. The music swelled and rose, clearer and clearer, an all-pervading sound finally, its cadences blotting out any other refrain in the mind.

Step by step she went downstairs and through the hall. Gilbert Windon was waiting, looking up at her. Beyond that small sea of faces of family friends, of relatives of Eustace's, of her own school friends, his face stood out, with the most long succession of sunlit days against some of the most exotic backgrounds on earth. And sometimes he thought he'd known her better in the time when he was no more to her than a casual guest at her father's or her sister's house.

How much he had hoped for in his marriage he knew by the very bitterness of that hope's deferring. He remembered that he had laughed with genuine amusement when Denise said, "You mean a formal marriage?" and he had said, "I didn't, but if you want it that way, so it shall be," or words like that. He had been so confident that with time, new scenes, his presence constant in them, his devotion undisguised, she would turn to him with love.

From the Pyramids to Palestine, from Venice to Barcelona, she had turned to him with liking, her blue troubling look of radiance, of confidence, upon it.

Then she was standing beside him. He was taking her hand. She did not look at his face any more, but at the familiar countenance of the minister who had married her father and her mother.

Gilbert Windon sat in the crowded lounge of Grosvenor House, surrounded by high-voiced Britishers drinking tea, on a Sunday afternoon in the spring of 1935. He was waiting for Denise to return from a call on a school acquaintance who happened to be in London at another hotel.

Something might have been deduced by an acute observer as to the relationship between Gilbert Windon and his wife by the fact that he was invariably early for their appointments, and she was always conscientiously punctual.

He was early now, so that he had unwanted leisure to think of her who still summed up all his dreams, though through her he had received the gravest disappointment of his life.

Six months of the year of marriage he'd asked for were done. He had had Denise's invariably amiable companionship through all the countries of the Mediterranean, through eyes sometimes ardent with interest in something she saw, never ardent toward him. Only, when he made any special gesture of demonstrativeness, her eyes, even her voice, grew terrified; and immediately he felt even worse than if she had struck him!

So he was left in the undignified and rather ridiculous position of a husband not a husband. There had been days when that position infuriated him, days when he forgot it almost in genuine pleasure in Denise's companionship, days when he decided he hated her, days when he decided she could not help not loving him, and whatever she did was right, because he loved her so. Generally the situation left him in a state where he thought, resentfully, he had lost all his decisiveness. Yet the only release from that state was of necessity a gesture so ruthless and so violent that he never seriously considered making it.

As near as he could come to humor over the situation was to determine that her feelings toward him were not quite those of a daughter to an indulgent father, but more those of a favorite niece toward an admiring uncle. . . .

SPRING BRINGS THE NEED FOR PLANS FOR HOME REDECORATING

Now is the time to turn thoughts to redecorating those rooms in your home which must be done this year. Many changes are possible at little expense. The most charming bedrooms are done simply and to suit the individual. The bedroom, as no other room in the house, can be decorated in a color scheme and furnishings to form a comfortable, pleasing setting for the individual's personality.

The woodwork may be of the same finish throughout the bedrooms but select wall papers, floor coverings, and accessories which are suitable to the size of the room, the location, the amount of light as well as ones which will suit the occupant. Dark small rooms may be made to seem lighter and larger or low ceilings higher with the right selection of color and design. White or cream paints harmonize with almost any color scheme and give a fresh, clean look.

Dark furniture may be refinished or may be painted or enameled to look like new. Massive or over-ornamented pieces can be cut down to the more modern designs. Inexpensive fabrics for curtains, slip covers and bed spreads, if carefully selected and made, will add as much zest as the more expensive ones.

Comfort should always be a dominant factor in a bedroom. Not only should the bed and its furnishings be comfortable but the other furnishings in the room want to be arranged for the most enjoyment.

Beds should be placed so that the occupants do not waken facing a strong light or are not exposed to too much draft. A bedside table with lamp high enough to give good reading light, a place to lay down a book or magazine when finished, or an extra pillow near at hand are little comforts not to be overlooked.

BRISTOL HIGH ANNEXES COURT CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE COUNTY; DEFEATS MORRISVILLE, 15 TO 12

By Louis Tomlinson

"Bristol is just three points better than Morrisville." These were the words spoken by Coach John Hoffman after his team was defeated by Bristol as the champions of Bucks County. And how true that statement is as Bristol for the third time this season—twice during the regular season and on Saturday upset the Morrisville clan by three points. The final score on Saturday was 15-12. Previously to this Bristol won 16-13, and 19-16.

Coach Dougherty's quintet sought some sort of consolation for the defeat handed them on Friday by Quakertown in the P. I. A. A. Tournament at Norristown; so they went out and beat Morrisville to annex the County Championship to add to laurels already won when they captured the Lower Bucks title.

The tilt was played before the largest crowd ever to witness a court fray on the local floor and although it didn't produce as many thrills and excitement as other games of the tournament or as the two teams provided in the past, it kept the throng in a constant suspense and on the edge of their seats throughout the entire game.

The reason for the low scoring and not so many thrills was due obviously to the two teams carrying out their coaches' instructions of close guarding and not allowing their opponents to get set to shoot. This of course led to shots that had to be taken from difficult positions and from difficult angles of which many were missed. It also led to the committing of many fouls. However, no one was ousted from the struggle due to this offense.

Despite the fact that the battle wasn't as exciting as usual, all the glamour and color of the skirmish when these two clubs meet was present. From the moment of the first tap-off until the gun ended the game about an hour later the fans were wild with excitement and cheering constantly. Shots from the floor or foul line were greeted with cheers and jeers, whether converted or missed, and the drawing of a foul shot all were treated alike by the enthusiastic fans.

Many shots were taken and many missed due to the close guarding as explained before but whereas some bounded upon the rim, rolled around the net, or laid up there then fell off and onto the floor again causing the fans breathless moments, other shots never came near the cords, they being shot wildly.

As usual when the Bunny and Bull-dog tie into each other, the most excitement is reserved until the last period, and that was the case in this game. Going into the final period, Bristol led 11-9. Consecutive foul conversions by Wallace and Adams knotted the count at the start of the concluding canto at 11-11. However, Billy "Reds" Gallagher, a substitute guard sank one of the few set-shots from the side line at the white line a few moments after he entered the fray. This was the shot that broke the tie and won the ball game for the Cardinals, and the fans went into an uproar. Soon after this Punk Zefferi intercepted a pass, and dribbled down the court to sink a lay-up shot over the net as the local fans again went wild with joy, for it was this shot that sewed the game up for Bristol and Coach Bill Dougherty. Morrisville was upset and took time out immediately but nothing came of it as Bristol successfully proceeded to freeze the sphere for the rest of the game except for a foul shot converted by Buckman for the final point of the tilt.

SIX BLIND BOWLERS ENTER A. B. C. MEET

NEW YORK, Mar. 8.—(INS)—Six blind men, making up a virtual League of nations, and the most remarkable team entered for competition in the American Bowling Congress, March 19 to April 30, was disclosed here recently.

The sightless bowlers represent the Lighthouse League, the recreation branch of the Lighthouse Welfare Center of the New York Association for the Blind. They are entered as a five-man team in the booster division of the tournament, being selected in an elimination contest among six white and colored teams of the league held at the Lighthouse alleys.

Thomas McDonald, a Scotchman, is the lead-off man of the quintet. The anchor man, Carl Rice, is English, Isadore Schlein, is a Jew, Anthony Battista, is an Italian, Sigmund Malinoski, a Pole, Peter Finnegan, a nifty alternate, is Irish.

Their vocations differ as widely as their nationality. Rice is a braille writer at the N. Y. I. for the Blind. Schlein owns a newsstand. Battista works in the Bourne workshop for the blind. Malinoski and Finnegan are employed by W. P. A. project—a "talking" book for the blind. McDonald is a salesman.

As the Lighthouse Five have never bowled together before, they have been assigned to practice from one to two hours a day.

ROSETTA-BARRY STARS TO MATCH BOWLERS HERE

(By Louis Tomlinson)

On Wednesday, March 10th, Bristol bowlers will be treated with the rare opportunity of seeing the Rosetta-Barry Stars, world-famous bowling team, in action, as they will meet two teams representing Bristol, who play match games with teams of Philadelphia and surrounding area.

This five are without a doubt the most outstanding team not only of the United States, but of the entire universe; in fact they are recognized as the world's champion bowling team. Among the stars of the wooden ways connected with this club are the world-famous and internationally known pair of teupin kings in the person of Billy Knox and Jim Murgie, both of whom have set records in the bowling world, some of which have never been equalled in the ranks of this sport; consequently, they still stand today.

Of course many fans will recall the recent feat performed by Murgie about a month ago when he set a new world record of hitting 300, three consecutive games in match plays. Knox was the first bowler in the history of American bowling to hit 300 in the A. B. C. Tournament some years ago.

Besides these two famous maple tree trunks and record holders, are three other members who have all hit a 300 game at least once in their careers, and mostly more than once. This is a feat that has never been accomplished at any time by any one on the local alleys during its long period of operation in this borough, either by local stars or those who come here for match games from outside. With this in mind it will be interesting to note whether or not the Rosetta stars can accomplish this feat on these alleys.

This team is from Philadelphia, and all are Philadelphia boys, and Bristol is fortunate to secure this outfit to bowl an exhibition match on the Recreation alleys. As the seating capacity of the local alleys is limited, thereby making it hard to accommodate an extra large crowd which is expected to witness these world-famous bowlers, the public and fans who intend to see the match are requested and urged to secure reserved seats early in order to avoid any unnecessary and undesirable means of handling the crowd. Furthermore, the billers of the match do not wish to disappoint anyone who really desires to witness the match.
